

Fall Getaway: Let The Leaf Peeping Begin

September 1, 2022

By: Margie Goldsmith

It's almost Autumn. Time to take the winter coats out of the mothballs, jump into a pile of leaves, roast some chestnuts, and get away to see the brilliant reds, oranges, and yellow colors of fall foliage. Here are some perfect places to where you can drive, fly or take the train, and enjoy jaw-dropping views of fall color with comfortable accommodations from which to enjoy the views.

Payette National Forest, Idaho

The Payette National Forest in McCall, Idaho, is the second largest area of protected wilderness in the continental United States. Here, Shore Lodge an historic resort, offers 500 miles of public trails. For those who prefer not to walk, Fall is the best time to take the backcountry trails on an ATV. After a day in the outdoors, guests can relax in some of the country's most incredible naturally occurring hot springs. The area offers jaw-dropping scenery and endless opportunities to explore the outdoors in its coat of bright colors. Here, perched at an elevation of 5,000 feet, the sky's the limit.