With Halloween behind us, the days growing shorter, and a chill in the air, it is hard to ignore the festive winter season just around the corner. Towns have begun to announce their winter festivals and ski resorts are beginning to fill with patrons. In the Pacific Northwest, winter never fails to bring snowy landscapes, cozy resorts, and festive holiday events, making it difficult to choose the perfect escape. But fear not! These eight destinations have something for everyone—whether you'll be hitting the slopes or sipping hot cocoa by the fire.

McCall, Idaho

McCall, Idaho is a great winter vacation destination for couples and families, offering beautiful snowy landscapes, cozy lodges, and outdoor winter recreation. It has also earned a spot on the map for its renowned Winter Carnival, taking place in February of 2025, which will feature a snow sculpture contest, snowshoe golf, a beer garden, pancake breakfast, a firework show over the lake, and more. All winter long, McCall is a great option for snowmobiling, with over 500 miles of well-kept trails and untouched areas waiting to be explored. If you're after a blend of traditional rustic charm and modern comforts, Shore Lodge is a perfect choice. It offers cozy rooms and numerous amenities, from hot tubs and a heated pool to a fire pit, theater, snowshoe rentals, and more.
