Idaho might be famous for potatoes, but the state is also home to stunning mountains, relaxing hot springs, and tons of opportunities for outdoor recreation. This makes the state the perfect place for nature lovers to enjoy a wellness retreat. There are numerous spas throughout Idaho for those looking for a luxurious wellness vacation. Places such as Idaho's Coeur d'Alene Resort offer a comfortable stay where guests can be pampered at a high-quality spa. These can be enjoyed at a resort such as Shore Lodge or in nature, such as the hot springs at Kirkham. Here we will explore the nine best wellness retreats in Idaho.

Shore Lodge

Set in the Salmon River Mountains, Shore Lodge in McCall, Idaho, is a sanctuary for those seeking rest. This is a place surrounded by natural beauty, making it so guests won't want to spend much time indoors. Just outside the lodge there is 5,330 acres of beauty, including stunning mountains, thickets of forest, and the Payette National Forest. Shore Lodge provides luxury in this setting. Enjoy the stunning views from the lodge's heated pool. Or go for a swim on Payette Lake and sunbathe with mountain views. Near the lake there are firepits and S'mores available for roasting. Afterwards, soak in one of the outdoor hot tubs and enjoy the seasonal poolside bar. The spa at Shore Lodge offers everything from facials to massages and has a private hot spring. Unwind at the end of the day in one of the lodge's luxurious suites. They have different suites to suit everyone's needs. From a romantic fireside suite to a private lake-view suite.
