Two Boise Restaurants and an Eagle Newcomer Win Wine Spectator Awards

If you cherish a glass of wine with your meal, you're probably familiar with the annual Wine Spectator Restaurant Awards. Every year, the self-described "world's leading authority on wine" highlights dining destinations with the best selections. When a restaurant receives a Wine Spectator stamp of approval, it's an indication that management devotes significant attention to wine.

This year's recently announced awards included four Idaho recipients — two in Boise, one in Eagle and one in McCall.

Visiting McCall? Check out the wine selection at The Narrows Steakhouse at Shore Lodge, 501 W. Lake St. It, too, earned a Best of Award of Excellence — yet again.
